Composer's Wife In Britain

He came to Frank in 1949 and worked here until August of 1957 when he was transferred to Crows Nest, B. C. as assistant locomotive foreman. He was married to his wife Nellie in Kenora in 1935. He was a member of the Blaimore Moose Lodge of Hillcrest and was of the catholic faith.

Besides his wife Nellie of Crows Nest he is survived by two sons, Ken of Crows Nest and Donald of Fort Smith, North West Territories, two daughters, Marilyn and Judy and by two sisters, Jean Hawrysh of Kenora and Mrs. Kay Zupansky of Fort William, Ontario and by two grandchildren.

Miss Nelson 1961

Miss Sheila McGovern was recently crowned Miss Nelson of 1961 and will as a result represent Nelson at the Pacific National Exhibition being held in Vancouver.

There were a total of eight girls competing in the running for the title of Miss Nelson and the girls were judged on the basis of her charm, personality and deportment, abilities, general intelligence and beauty of face and figure.

Sheila is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom McGovern of Nelson and the grand-daughter of Mrs. William Bell also of Nelson who were former Coleman residents.

Sheila is 18 years of age and is an employee of Mount St. Francis Infirmary and a University of British Columbia student. She intends to enter nurses training at St. Pauls Hospital in Vancouver this fall.

Council Approve Resurfacing of Coleman Streets

Coleman town council met this week when approval was given by council for a resurfacing job on a large portion of Coleman streets and avenues.

The most travelled streets are to be resurfaced and the estimated cost of the job will be in the near vicinity of some $30,000.00.

To be resurfaced is the east end half of 5th street and connecting avenue to 6th street, 6th street, 3rd street, 2nd street, main street, central avenue from main street to 3rd street, Granby avenue, Poulson avenue and Mayfair avenue, a continuation of 2nd street all the way through to the west end of 1st street in west Coleman.

The greater part of the streets will be surfaced with a full 24 foot wide coating and there will also possibly be an application on all streets from the pavement to the curb of a gravel and spray mixture to round off the road and cut any dust problems. The surfacing is being done by General Construction of Lethbridge.

The town of Coleman are also studying their plans for a sidewalk program to be done under the Alberta Government five year plan. Some 7,000 feet of concrete sidewalk is being planned for and tenders are to be called immediately.

Miss Eleanor Raymond of Coleman has been hired as the new office assistant to aid town secretary, T. A. Collister. Miss Raymond replaces Mrs. Janet Venier, who has accepted a position in the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

Facts About Sleeping Sickness By Health Officer

It has been rumored that cases of Sleeping Sickness (Western Equine Encephalomyelitis) have occurred in our Health Unit area. Actually not one proven case in man has occurred this year in Alberta.

Different diseases are called Sleeping Sickness. One type that does occur in Western Canada is called Western Equine Encephalomyelitis which is generally abbreviated to WEE. The name is rather unfortunate because horses like many other mammals rarely suffer from the disease. The chief animal reservoirs of the causative organisms (a very small virus) are wild birds — pheasants, ducks, pigeons, blackbirds, etc. Horses, mules and man only get affected accidentally.

A very large number of these organisms infest the birds and generally speaking the birds do not suffer any ill effects from this invasion. The birds get bitten by a blood-sucking insect, usually a mosquito, and the mosquito carries the organisms. It is difficult to know if the mosquito suffers any ill effects.

As a rule the infected mosquito bites another bird and the virus has found a new host. However, if the infected insect likes a change of blood and bites man or horse the virus is transmitted and may cause a serious illness in the new host.

Domestic fowl can also be attacked by biting and stinging insects and can become a source of infection.

The disease is not infectious from man to man or horse to man and can only be transmitted by a blood sucking insect. The manifestation of the illness in man varies tremendously from a mild fever, which may go undetected, to convulsions, unconsciousness and death.

The mortality rate varies in different epidemics from 3 to 25%. The disease usually occurs only in hot weather. July and August, and the incubation period depends upon the air temperature.

In a temperature of 75 - 80 F. the incubation period is 5 to 7 days. Since the illness is so variable and can simulate many other diseases, the diagnosis is extremely difficult and can only be made with certainty by complicated laboratory tests.

Prevention consists mainly in sound sanitary measures, proper control of mosquitoes, screening of houses and especially sleeping quarters. Children should not be exposed to mosquitoes, should be kept indoors during the evening and should wear proper clothing.

I am of the opinion that when reasonable precautions are taken there is no reason for alarm.

K. Adler, B.A., B.Ch., M.B., Medical Officer of Health.

COLEMAN SCOUTS RETURN FROM OTTAWA

There was a good turnout of scouts, cubs and parents at the scout and cub picnic held on Sunday, July 2nd, 1961. Cub and scout leaders of Coleman and district commissioner Clarence Weekes and family of Cowley were present.

On display was a replica of a camp made by the Bo-O-Link Patrol.

Pictures of scouts and cubs were taken and after lunch Mr. Mel Dunford was presented with several gifts on behalf of the Lions, Cub and Scout Group committee, the six jamboree scouts and all the scouts with thanks and deep appreciation for a job well done.

Mrs. R. Szymanski presented the gift from the group committee, Joey Aiello on behalf of all the scouts and Bob Liddell on behalf of the six jamboree scouts.

Mr. Dunford expressed his regret at having to resign and told the boys he thoroughly enjoyed scouting with them and hoped sometime in the future he would again be able to participate in the leadership.

He thanked all the boys and the committee after which Mr. Weekes led the boys in "three cheers."

Games were enjoyed by all and the picnic broke up at 7:00 p.m.

Local Student Wins Graduate Scholarship

William Patrick Truch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Truch of Coleman, Alberta, has been awarded a Lambda Chi Alpha graduate scholarship according to Executive Director Cyril F. Flad of Indianapolis.

Lambda Chi Alpha, international social fraternity represented on 155 college and university campuses in 44 states and Canada, is presenting $1,000 scholarships to each of five graduate members who have excelled in scholarship, leadership and moral character. Scholarships are awarded annually by the fraternity.

Truch, presently a junior mechanical engineer with Shell Oil of Canada, received his Bachelor of Science degree from the University of Alberta in June. He plans to continue his studies at Alberta this fall, doing graduate work in pre-stressed concrete.

Scholarship honours are nothing new to the 23-year-old Canadian. During his undergraduate days, he received the Alberta Hotel Association Scholarship, University of Alberta Matriculation Honor Prize, Canadian Fina Oil Scholarship, University of Alberta First Class Standing Prize and the Province of Alberta Undergraduate Scholarship.

Along with his scholastic achievements, Truch found time to serve his fraternity as president and social chairman. He also represented his Lambda Chi Alpha chapter at the fraternity's 1960 General Assembly in Cincinnati, Ohio.

He was this chapter's highest ranking member scholastically the past two years. In each of these years he received the Inter-Fraternity Council Medal, presented annually to the top six fraternity members at Alberta.

Truch's honors and accomplishments have been shared by Miss Leah Jones who he plans to marry August 26, 1961.

OF MANY THINGS

(By Ambrose Hills)

ENCOURAGE GROWTH

Gardeners thin out their rows, pulling the weak and unpromising plants while coddling and encouraging the strong.

Governments, too often, take an entirely different approach to the economy. They do nothing to encourage the growth of the vigorous and strong—all their attention is devoted to stunting strong growth in favor of the poor plants.

They especially coddle those industries in which they have poured the taxpayers' money. Crown corporations such as TCA, CNR and CBC, are good examples.

The present government took power with a mandate from Canadians to encourage growth and to stop this business of pouring tax money into ventures which are not, really, the main function of governments.

They made some improvements. CBC was stripped of its regulatory power—but was given tremendous sums of money and so much freedom of action that CBC officials have begun to think there is no such word as "no" in the treasury dictionary. TCA was obliged to face some competition, and it smartened up the service, too, but because TCA officials cry hard all the time, the government still coddles them beyond reason, and inhibits their competitors.

Surely the way to get growth is to encourage growth. If those who want to expand are to be held back because they might cast a shadow on some crown corporation, then we just will not have the growth we should have.

It is true that the present government took charge just at a moment when the economic cycle was on the downswing. They have done a good deal to take the country through a bad recession fairly comfortably. They have taken some steps that should help speed recovery. They seem to know the proper direction, but move towards it altogether too slowly considering the overwhelming mandate they were given four years ago. They spend too much time pondering the political popularity of each move.

Canadians are young and vigorous, and there should be room for growth. It should be encouraged on every hand, and not inhibited.

Catch Them All From Calgary

"Catch Them All From Calgary", a guide book to some of the best fishing spots in Southern and Central Alberta, appears to be living up to its name.

The Calgary Aquarium distributed thousands of the booklets this summer, and many anglers now returning from fishing holidays report good catches as a result of following the guide book's advice.

Where catches were not satisfactory, adverse factors such as poor fishing weather or an abundance of fish food in the ponds and streams may have been at least partially responsible, according to Calgary Aquarium curator Elmer H. Taylor.

Besides details accessible fishing waters and the type of fish usually taken there, the free booklet gives the angler road directions, camping and picnicking information, bait advice — and plenty of encouragement. "The further upstream you go, the better the fishing is liable to be" is the suggestion to nimrod fishing 30 miles up Bragg Creek, while those who choose the Highwood River are advised to "pick the good-looking spots and be patient, the fish are here in quantity."

For the angler who wants to take a good leisurely look at the fish he is after, the Calgary Aquarium's game fish display offers ample opportunity. On view in large fresh water tanks at the Aquarium — located on Calgary Brewery grounds at 9th Ave. and 15th St., S.E. — are all types of game fish found in Alberta. They include rainbow and brown trout, cutthroat and dolly varden, brook trout, lake trout, pike, perch, walleyes and rocky mountain whitefish.

And the fisherman who catches a big one is always welcomed if he returns to the Aquarium to show off his prize. Recently a fisherman landed a seven pound trout near Banff, but was unable to identify it. When he took it to the Aquarium where Mr. Taylor identified it as a Dolly Varden he was encouraged to enter the specimen in an international fish-catching competition. Officials at the provincial fish hatchery, adjacent to the Aquarium, verified the size and weight of the fish for official competitions.

Lower Limits For Ducks This Year

Drought conditions which have seriously affected waterfowl production on the prairie provinces have resulted in lowered bag and possession limits in Alberta, according to the 1961 Migratory Bird Regulations announced by the Canadian Wildlife Service. All provinces west of Quebec have had limits reduced.

The daily limit for ducks is down from seven to five, and the possession limit has been reduced from 21 to 10. One canvasback or red-head duck is being permitted as a "mistake" bird. This allowance ties in with an open letter to fish and game clubs in the prairie provinces and western Ontario, in which Resources Minister Walter Dinsdale asked that clubs help inform all hunters that canvasbacks and redheads should not be shot this year, in an effort to retain an adequate breeding population.

The bag and possession limits on geese remain unchanged at five and ten, but the limits on rails and coots have been reduced to five and ten. Snipe limits remain unchanged at 8 and 16.

During the open season and the five days immediately following, hunters in Alberta will not be permitted to ship birds in excess of the possession limits out of the province.

Alberta seasons are as follows. Ducks, Geese, Rails and Coots (other than Ross's Goose), September 9 to November 30, Northern Zone.

Wood Ducks, September 11 to December 13, Central and Southern Zones.

Wilson's Snipe, September 9 to October 18, Northern Zone. September 11 to October 18, Central and Southern Zones.

Newsman are only human

(Kamloops Sentinel)

The press got attention from a number of noble lords when the U.K. House of Lords devoted some time to debating the press.

Newspaper reporters, as the noble earl who opened the debate rightly said, are human beings, "as the quotation made by Lord Auckland, and the other speakers saw fit to apply the compliment to the profession as a whole. The Archbishop of Canterbury, remarks the London Sunday Times, "charitably extending it as far as editors."

In its comments upon the debate and the views expressed by the Lords, the Sunday Times says: "Their Lordships, in the polite, discursive way, may well have hit upon something. Critics of the press often seem to treat a newspaper as an impersonal entity, or at best the creature of its proprietor, forgetting that a newspaper is only the sum of those who work together to make it, and that when the edition buzzer tolls, it tolls for all of us. What comes off the presses is the product of human fallibility as much as human skill, and in crediting journalists with a small admixture of original sin that they themselves possess, the critics are at once flattering and unrealistic."

"Indeed, a warning conclusion to be drawn from the debate is that the noble Lords who know us best dislike us least. The Earl of Arran pressed the House to believe that we respond to frankness and civility. Admittedly he was indicating how to avert disclosures which will kill granny, ruin a deal or make your name a laughing stock throughout Shropshire," but the moral is a vivid one — and the converse should be true for the press itself. Those newspapers which fall short of common decency in their dealing with the public should pay heed to the Archbishop of Canterbury's observation that they lower the standing of the whole profession.

"The Archbishop was surely right in insisting that only the press itself can put and keep its house in order, and there is perhaps something to be said for his views that editors, 'shy and elusive persons,' could raise general standards by open discussion of the 'methods, morals and manners,' which they try to interpret in their profession. "The debate as a whole made it clear that peers, though critical, are devoted readers of newspapers down to the last misprint. Their taste is catholic, from the heaviest editorial to the crudest comic strip. Lord Brabazon's confession that the first thing he turned to on a Sunday was 'Longhurst on Golf' will cause some heart-searching, no doubt; but sensible opinion will certainly endorse the plea for a press free from outside interference implied in his conclusion: 'Always keep a hand of nurse. For fear of finding something worse.'"

BOOK REVIEW...

The Frank Slide Story, by Frank W. Anderson, 64 pages, illustrated, published by Frontier Books, 417 - 16th Ave. N.W., Calgary.

For the first time, the story of the disaster at Frank, on April 29, 1903, when a wedge of Limestone from Turtle Mountain fell from the top and buried a portion of the town, has been excitingly captured by a western historian. Frank Anderson, author of "Louis Riel" and "Captain of the Plains", spent two years of research into the Frank Slide story and, working from official sources, has produced the most authentic and complete account of the slide yet published. The story builds up to those 100 seconds of wind, rock and dust which crushed out the lives of over seventy people.

Profusely illustrated, the book destroys many of the ill-founded rumors and legends that have surrounded the story of the Frank Slide and produces in dramatic style the true story of the incident. Copies are available from the Coleman Journal office.
